Some say be reasonable, I say be unreasonable. Some say be practical, I say be unpractical. Some say be rational, I say be irrational. There was never a person who achieved milestones of great magnitude without thinking differently, and if thinking differently requires you to be a loner, outsider, or even rebel at times, than damn it, be who you need to be because that is who you truly are.

You are a magnificent, powerful, amazing spectacle, and the world has their eyes on you. They see your power and they are afraid of it, they see your inspiration and they sometimes run from it, but deep down in the way hours of the night, in the places that they don't talk about at parties, they want you at your best, they need you at your best. Because while others are running from, you are the person that runs to. You are the person that stands in your conviction and says, "Nothings gonna stop me, not now, not ever, and not for eternity."

-Ted McGrath

Nothing is more motivating and inspiring than a personal story. Your story is the core of everything you do to promote and grow your business.

Sharing my story has been the key to my multi-million-dollar success, but I didn't just tell a story. I shared my story. There is a specific strategy to sharing your story so that you come across as real and vulnerable to your audience. Being real and vulnerable makes a strong connection.

Check out this video so I can show you how to share your story too.
